CTS President Dave White and VP of Business Development Jana Hunkler Featured in CTAA's "Digital CT" Online Magazine

Trumbull, CT – Dave White, President, and Jana Hunkler, VP of Business Development, have lent their NEMT expertise to the Community Transportation Association of America's (CTAA) e-zine, Digital CT in their highly informative article, NEMT In Action: As a Broker, What We're Looking for in an NEMT Provider. (<https://bit.ly/2FbJdHv>)

"Dave White has been a leader at CTAA for the better part of two decades and has always been an advocate for CTAA members in the NEMT space. Jana Hunkler has extensive experience in community transportation, particularly in partnership with CTAA in Western Massachusetts. With this combined experience and expertise, Dave and Jana were ideal contributors to CTAA's Non-Emergency Medical Transportation edition," says Scott Bogren, Executive Director of CTAA.

The article highlights the strengths of transportation management, and the importance of professional transportation providers operating within a strong oversight model. CTS has developed this approach over its 20+ years of managing transportation for millions of riders across the country.

"The best partnerships," states Dave White in the Digital CT article, "are built with those transportation providers that understand how truly important our work is to supporting positive health outcomes for the fragile riders we transport, and that are respectful, professional able to be flexible to meet the unique needs of those riders."
